My main concern is volume of traffic that this new development will bring. People no matter what you ask and expect them to do will always use their cars as their first choice of transport. We don't have an efficient public transport system so people will not use the bus.(unless of course you cannot drive). I've yet to use the station at Kenilworth. Another point if you are expecting people to cycle then proper cycle paths should be in place for the publics safety prior to any new build. With all these new developments due to take place close by (i.e. Kings Hill project) traffic will be at a standstill as is the case most days on the A46 towards Longbridge island.
