Dear Planning Team,

I would like to register that I thoroughly support the aims and objectives of the proposed Net Zero Carbon policy.

On an initial reading of the document, it appears to be well thought-out (including a sensible reference to avoiding creation of fuel poverty) but entirely focussed on carbon during occupation and use of buildings. Would it also be worthwhile to consider embedded carbon in the construction phase, and to encourage the use of renewable or low-carbon construction materials?

Yours sincerely,

Jonathan Hodgson CEng MIMechE
